Bar dark chocolate 70% mono-origin 50 g/1.75 oz

CARATTERISTICHE

The “crus” come from individual production areas and, like grapes, are the product of a particular climate and sunshine in a particular region and have their own individual characteristics and distinctive flavours. They are the most immediate and “wild” expression of the cocoa bean. The raw material arrives pure, the aroma has a bite of strength and the acidity of the flavour is intense, giving way to a clean, fresh after-taste. The crus come from individual plantations: Venezuela and Madagascar provide a “trinitario” whose genetic make-up contains more than 85% of “criollo”, the ancient cocoa bean of the Maya. Trinidad, Ecuador, Jamaica and Grenada produce a very high-quality “trinitario” used exclusively by Amedei.

These crus represent the genetic diversity of cocoa beans which exist today, starting from the beans which best exemplify the characteristics of each type of tree, selected and cultivated along precise lines by the producers in the countries of origin.

Amedei's I Cru chocolates are a journey tracing the tracks of cocoa's oldest varieties, grown on individual plantations and crafted according to the customs of their lands of origin. This captures their wildest essences for a taste experience forging new frontiers.

Venezuela:

Aromas: Delicate aroma of sugar blended with melted butter, green coffee, sandalwood, incense, dried fruit.

Taste: Decisive snap, particularly powerful, liqueur aroma, of hazelnut, walnut, almond and cashew, slightly spicy. A captivating chocolate, full-bodied and clean. The intense flavour leaves a truly pleasant aromatic richness on the palate.
